in that barn. Jimmy--oh, yeah. He and--was it Roddy that was with him? Anyway, he was cleaning the cow's stall. It was a little window that they were throwing it out through there. No, it was Roddy that was cleaning the stall out. And Jimmy came up on the outside. And he was going to look in through this little hole, you know, and scare Roddy. But Roddy let him have the whole thing! But the fork went into his eye. Didn't go all the way through, but he did lose his eyesight. Oh, my God. And you know, neither my father or mother knew it for a long, long time. We used to keep--if we got hurt, we used to keep it away from them, and we wouldn't tell. I broke my nose. It was in the fall of the year. And we had that Ginny--a horse, mare, we had. And she was awful--she wouldn't stand still for you to get the halter on her. So, this day--I don't know where I was going to go, but I was sort of in a hurry to get ahold of her and tackle her, put her in the wagon. Every time when I'd just about get ahold of the halter, she'd go right around. And she did this three different times to me. And it was between the gate and the (field)--that was plowed. And it was hard. So this time when she went by, I got ahold of her by the tail--me, thinking that I could hold her there! She took off, me holding onto the tail. And then when I can't keep up with her, I let go. And I went flat on my nose. Oh, my nose, and I was all blood all over me. I went to the barn. I was scared to death. Papa was in, so I didn't dare go in there. And Roddy did come over-- oh, golly. And he went in, he went in the house, he got another dress for me. We had stopped the bleeding and--oh, God. But then my nose was twisted. Laughs. So one side of my nose here is broken.

No. (Which gives you an idea how often he looked at you!) Laughter. The only time he looked at me was when I was going to get a good spanking! The last time he ever tried to hit me. Or any of us. He had a habit of, you know, giving you one that you'd land against the wall.... I don't know what happened. I can't remember what the spanking was--oh, it would be something Kitty did, you know, and I was blamed for it.... Anyvay, we were in the kitchen. When you go out into the old kitchen, there was the door there, swinging the opposite. And I was standing there. And he came--he came and he put his hand--and I saw him coming with his hand, you know. So I ducked, and he got the door! That was one time I got the best of him! Laughter. Oh, Dad. I love you! He hit that...! It hurt his hand. And my
