I'm like Johnny Abbass. I'm taking this picture. Now, you stand over there." (But what do you mean by that? Say that a little differently.) Well, if you pay attention sometimes when you're out--let's say a sporting event or a social event or something-- someone will stand up and take a picture. And when they take their picture, someone that's there with them says, "Who do you think you are?--Johnny Abbass?" Because, you know, as we started to take pictures, and our business became established, we'd be everywhere taking pictures. And I was the one who did most of the photographs outside. Tony and George, they did most of the inside photography. So, wherever I'd go, they'd say, "Here comes Johnny Abbass." So after awhile, people started to relate taking pictures to Johnny Abbass. I'll tell you a little incident, little story. My daughter was on holiday down with some of her friends, down south--her and her husband. And one of her friends kept getting up, taking pictures. And every time she'd take a picture, she'd say, "I'm Johnny Abbass." So after she did this about half a dozen times or so, just sort of as a lark, my daughter said, "Look, you know, you're taking my name in vain." She said, "Your name is not Abbass. You're married to Les Young." "Yes, but," she said, "Johnny Abbass is my father." She said, "There's no such a person as Johnny Abbass! That's just something people say when they take pictures!" But anyway, we came back from the war. We opened up a business of our own. Right here. Northside Tire Ltd.
