a penny a pound--did they hand you your money?) Well, no. They'd give you a slip--write your hundred pound or 1200 pound. We used to go at the middle of the summer--we used to go there and settle at the shop. Then, if you had something to come to you, well, they'll give you some. If you've got nothing to come, you'll get nothing. (Did it ever happen to you that you had no mon? ey coming?) Aw, well, it happened some? time, you know. They'll give you (what you need) and they'll charge you in the shop--they'll give you just the same; they won't stop giving it to you--because they know they'll get your fish, you see? You wouldn't get money if you had no money to come. Maybe sometime you'll owe some money to them. You've got a family, it costs a lot, you know. Flour, molasses and tea. Sometimes we'd buy something for the house, lots of stuff: dishes. The credit was just the same. They won't stop giving it to you. In the fall, when you go to settle, if you've got no money, they'll give you the flour for the winter just the same. Oh, yes. They wouldn't stop giving you anything. Aw, no. And the next summer, well, maybe it will be a good sum? mer- -well, you'll get clear of them. It was running like that, you know. (Year after year?) Year after year. But sometimes it was hard on you, you know? You'd go there and you'd try to get some money to pay your tax-- and there's no mon? ey coming. Now you'll be behind for your tax that year. You'll have to try to make mon? ey for next year to pay those taxes. But the tax was not as high as it is now.... (If you owed a debt to the Jersey firm, did that mean you had to give the Jersey firm your fish?) Well...there was only them buy? ing fish then, at The Harbour. See, you had to go fish? ing for them. There was nobody else, at that time. But af? ter awhile Aucoin
