kicking things, and they know the old fellow'll hide them, anyway. Alfred laughs. That might not sound very good on tape, but that's a fact. I think the old fellows would starve to death today if their family was going to keep them. The most of them, as far as I can see, they stick them off in an old people's home or something, to get them out of the way. (But you kept both your parents.) Yeah. I looked after them, and buried them. (When someone asks you, "What are you? What do you do for a living?" what would you say?) I couldn't say I was anything! Laughs. You know, there's lots of fellows goes around with a diploma for something, and then say what they have. Or go to a trade school.... I had no trade in the world, as far as I can see. But anything around a boat or in the water or around nets or anything, I can do it. merchant for a trade, I think! (When you were fishing, is it safe to say that you had an idea of what was going on on the bottom of the lake?) Well, we had an idea about when the fish would be running. If the herring got plenty in the spring. (So, would you s, a farmer?) Well, I think. Because the farming. I m, never made anyth know, I have a t years. I believe trucks. I'd be t old. And I had a motor in it and when I was lobst' was from fishing fished I would b' ay you were a fisherman or I was a better fisherman, I never made any money on de it all on fishing; I ing on the place.
