ning, any of the women that came in. You ain't coming in to visit and do nothing! No! (But that was the way women thought, too, wasn't it? It was busy hands, constantly...,) Constantly doing some? thing, (And you were trained in that your? self,) Well, yes. So then I started. Well, I could knit when I came here. I could knit because we learned it in school, and my mother learned me how to knit. I could knit when I was 7 years old. Just little things, I could knit a sock up to the heel, but then she taught me how to do the heel and how to take in for the foot The Smith brothers, Above: Uncle Murdock; So when I'd be doing nothing I'd sit down and I'd knit. Maybe she'd have three or four pairs to be ready, or oversocks--you know, the men used to wear the oversocks. Now, she'd probably get an order for a couple of pairs of them. No. No, no, no. Now, she put the water in the house. She got the pipes and the sink and the faucets with money that she was earning with that knitting. And oilcloth on the floor so as I wouldn't have to be scrubbing with the scrub brush all the time. And then maybe she'd get enough to get wallpaper to paper one of the bedrooms or something like that. See, the money was always spent for . something like that that you couldn't trade butter or eggs for. Me, when I make the money I spend it on whatever I need!
