The Hills of Glenurchie This jig was called "There Came a Young Maiden" on the MacLellan Trio's second LP (CX 46). It's been found in many many Scottish and Irish collections • in various settings. Other titles include "Over the Hills" and "The Jolly Corkonian." Although Cape Bretoners generally play this tune in A Minor, we've based this offering on the MacLellans's E Minor setting, with variations as played by a number of Cape Breton fiddlers. Miss Ina Morrison This is a march that Theresa played on the first MacLellan Trio LP. Marie accompanied her on the piano. It has been recently reissued on the "Cape Breton Fiddlers on Early LPs" tape. Theresa has beautiful inter? pretations of bagpipe marches, and this is a good example. The Burning of the Bridge The MacLellans didn't have the title on their LP; this is the title Dan Joe MacInnis used for it on one of his records. Although it's not found in the usual collections, it's a first cousin of a tune in the Simon Fraser Collection called "The Highland Road to Inverness." It's on the "Cape Breton Fiddlers on Early LPs" tape, played by Donald MacLellan and accompanied by Marie. n -.
