Apart from the scenic attractions of the Park site itself, the approaches to the site pass through scenery which is already internationally famous. More-over, a tourist entering Cape Breton Island to visit the Park site can travel all around the Island, on roads which are all scenic and which include many points of outstanding interest, without having to cover one foot of the road twice. (Cautley then mentions a number of places of beauty on Cape Breton which are outside the proposed Park site. He explains that these routes) may be considered somewhat irrelevant in this report, but the fact is that the Cape Breton site is almost entirely by an automobile scenic route and must be judged accordingly. As a scenic route for motoring tourists, its attractions and drawing power are inter-related to all the other scenic attractions of Cape Breton Island. The geographical position of the Cape Breton site in relation to the rest of Nova Scotia is excellent. Situated at the extreme northerly end of Cape Breton Island, it means that every visitor to the Park will have to travel twice through the length and breadth of the whole Province, and will greatly benefit the general tourist business of the Province. Considered from another angle, the geographical position of the site has the disadvantages of being rather far from the most densely populated centers, although the motoring public appear to do more long distance travelling every year and to think less of it,...

Game and Fish Resources of Proposed Site At the present time, there are a number of whitetail deer within the site, but very few moose and no caribou. I am informed by a number of people who are in a position to know the facts, that there were great numbers of both moose and caribou throughout the north end of the Island. I have been given a copy of part of an undated letter from A. C. Dodd to Lord Sheffield describing the natural resources of the "Island of Cape Breton" in which the following occurs under the heading of "Animals": In the year 1789 upwards of 10,000 moose were killed by Indians and foreign hunters, merely for their skins and the carcasses left to rot in the woods. They are now scarce. In 1787 I saw upwards of 2,000 caribou on the barrens of Gabarus. Hare, or rather rabbits; fox, black, grey, red or patch; bear, very large I saw one said to weigh 1,200 pounds. Otter, beaver, martin, mink. Musquash, porcupine, wildcat, the wolf is nearly exterminated.
