they had different operations on her feet-- feet kept turning back. She was a smart, dear child. There was a place in Colorado where they were promised a cure. But they needed the money and they didn't have the money. But I loaned them the money to send the child there. And the operation was successful and the feet stayed straight. One morning they went up--she didn't get up at her usual time--and they found her dead in bed. It was too much strain on the heart, all those operations. You know, I never forgot that child. I still see her plain as when she used to come in the store. (What year did your husband die?) 1933. My husband developed ulcers in the war. He should have had an operation, but he didn't want an operation. Anyway, with the diet--but then he hemorrhaged. We lived next door to a hotel, and there were three doctors in the hotel. I went in and got one of the doctors, and they put him in bed and gave him powdered caustic to stop the bleeding. Then he was to go to hospital for X rays. And I couldn't leave him--I couldn't do what I was doing--I'd been working in a store. So I went over to the hotel. I said, "Can I get a job here? My husband is sick. I'll do chamber work, I'll do anything. I've got to be home at noon 'cause my husband's in bed, he's recuperating." They knew about the hemorrhaging and everything. So they gave me some chamber work. I had 50 apartments to take care of. Now that's a day's work, from 9 o'clock to 5. They had other girls, you know, doing the same thing. I had mine all done at 1 o'clock. And I'd go home, I'd get my husband's lunch. And then, there was another lady. I had three jobs when my husband was sick in bed. She lived across the street. I went over there and looked after her. She had curvature of the spine, and she couldn't get out of bed. And did what was to be done there Oh, I met such nice people.
