The Green Mountain Boys This is a jig from one of Winston's 78 records,' on the new cassette tape. John Allan Cameron told me that this was at one time a very popular jig. It's not played commonly today. The Silver Spire This is the last tune that I heard Winston play in person. I went visiting him on a lunch break at Stott Aluminum • sitting out in the van having lunch, and he played a tune for me and that was the tune he played. It's on the home tapes. It's an Irish reel. It was recorded in the 1930s by Paddy Killoran on a 78. It's also found in the O'Neill's Collection. I transcribed it based on Winston's home tape made in 1982. $%' 1 n rr'L' Q''' ' , 1 . rrrn 9 ill 3'_y, * • - 3 A p-, _n 1 • -*z' 3 rTTI • 1 1J L ' ' M 1 ' ' ?? 11ll r' # • qg:-' Mr. Bernard A reel that was found in Joseph Lowe's 19th century collection. Winston has doctored it up, added his own twists, made it better • say what you want! The transcription here is based on the 1958 solo home tape. 1' ' ' ' ll | | , ll,, r' | | | | "T . l , , , ' ' rr r' 'lJ JJ'JJJJJJJJJJJJ JJ 'JJJJ' *- 'vjj J 'll J jj" fjj. il'ljll' ll' l' ' ' dd 'L-LJ • i MM l L'i Liiiiiil il-'=i=H • Bobby Cuthbertson It's a bagpipe tune. It was played by Sandy Boyd. It's one of the few tunes that Winston personally taught me. It took him all one afternoon to teach it to me, quite a few years ago. It's a hornpipe. This is the way he taught it to me. On the 78 he plays it a little bit different in the third turn.
