gun away." He said, "It's going to go anyhow, and it's no good for him to try and fight it." So he made all kind of promises that (Maurice'd) never be without work while he was able to work, or any of his sons-- they'd always have work. And all those promises were made to him--"Go ahead and let us have your property." It was heart-breaking. It was, you know, such beautiful soil. And the beautiful forests of wood and everything we had. And the kids enjoyed the fishing, you know, there, and everything. (And how many years were you there before this happened to you?) About 3 years. (You had put your house back together.) Oh, yes. Maurice: House and barn. Emma: House and barn up there, too. Nothing for that. Nothing for the house or barn. You could take it or you could leave it. (You're standing there with that gun that day. And did Emma come and talk to you?) Maurice: Yeah. (And what did you decide?) I decided I'd better not shoot somebody. I
