Sydney had a powerhouse team. But this "Legs" Fraser was excellent. Glace Bay takes "Legs" Fraser and they're leading the series three games to nothing or some? thing. They're leading the finals three games to nothing. Sydney protests. And the League then throws "Legs" Fraser out, calls the games null and void. The three games that had been played. The fans in Glace Bay go crazy. Like, they're going to lynch people coming from Sydney, and they're going to pound the hell out of all the fans. So they set up barricades at Reserve. And the wholesalers weren't allowed to come into Glace Bay to sell the merchants food! It was ridiculous. And of course, they lost then. Once they lost "Legs" Fraser, they lost. But they had been leading the series 3-nothing. And that's kind of a famous story. The emotions between Glace Bay and Sydney were never the best when it came to hockey. But that was a terrible confrontation.... (Okay, Bill, so the Miners win. And they beat Halifax for the Nova Scotia champion? ship.) Then we play the Maritime Title. See, each province would declare a winner, then you'd declare a regional. So P.E.I., New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia would play off for the Maritime Crown. Then, they would have to play Quebec. We won the Maritime Crown, The West would have their representative who would eventually play off with Ontario. Then the winners would meet for the National Crown.... Because we were never considered strong enough to go any further. We had sent teams--we had sent teams up. You know, you were supposed to play off. So, I'll give you an example. North Sydney went up and picked up this Freddie Courtney one year--I think it was the year before. And they were beaten 14-nothing or 14-1 by Quebec. It wasn't much of a series, because we didn't have the calibre of players Quebec or Ontario had. So, when we won the Maritime Crown, for all intents and purposes our season was finished. There was no scheduled play-off with anybody else. But we had a fellow in Glace Bay by the Visit an Underground Coal Mine • 89 Pathfinder 4x4 NOW IN STOCK T!l? Miners* Museum Glace Bay, N. S.
