Everything is in that book, from the blast furnace to the finished product. (And U. S. Steel is no longer there.) No. U. S. Steel is finished. (It was the biggest in the world, wasn't it?) The biggest in the world. Bethlehem Steel, Lackawanna, Buffalo; Pittsburgh, Pennsyl? vania; Virginia--every one of them. Not one open hearth--50 open hearths. Fifty! Going full blast. So the war comes. The Japanese are defeat? ed. The Germans are defeated. And what do they do? Germany built up--Germany is stronger than ever they were. They built up Japan--that's cutting their throat to? day. With steelmaking. Shipping it in there--they're paying 5, 6, 7 dollars an hour. And what's happening? The Americans are buying it. Now, R. B. Cameron, when he came here, he was here a year or two. (This is after Hawker-Siddeley pulled out and the govern? ment took over.) We made a million tons of steel (in one year). We burnt the steel plant down doing ii'. Took it to the core. And what did R. B. do? He takes our Nail Mill to Dartmouth. (So) he's got a Nail Mill up there, he bought it from the gov? ernment. And he's buying his steel from Germany--offshore steel, to make his nails up there in Dartmouth. He didn't buy it from Sydney Steel. He gets it cheaper from Germany. So where do you stand? And the union can complain all its life.
