parently, some people would, you know-- they'd say something, one of those guys-- kind of a remorse of conscience. They'd kind of work a spell on themselves. (Ah. So it would be--you think people who, because they were afraid of them, some? thing would work.) Yeah. Weak mind, you know. I don't know what you'd call it, but they'd kind of work themselves up in that situation. Suppliers of Commercial Recreational Fencing p. O. Box 98, King St., North Sydney, N. S. Oh, yeah, you believe in stories. There's something wrong with you. You would hear so many stories in the olden days, they'd scare the wits out of you. But most of them, when they come to find out the trouble, there was nothing. (But did you never have an experience?) No. (Nothing.) And nobody did. (Oh, I can't say that.) My grandfather used to live over, just across there. And they saw lights. It was in this house. My father came to live with my mother. They were married in the States, and came to live with my grandfather there. And he bought this place. And apparently the woman that had this place, she was pretty rough, a hard character. And they'd be seeing lights at night. And the people around told him, "For God's sake, don't buy that place. That place is haunted." This year see all Atlantic Canada in one vacation. The green, gently rolling hills of Prince Edward Island... colourful Newfoundland and Labrador fishing villages... majestic New Brunswick salmon rivers... and the ocean-washed shoreline of Nova Scotia.
