started running. When he came to the water and muck, he didn't bother with the log, but ran right through the sluice to the safety of his home. He was terrified. A week later a man from Piper's Cove was killed in a mine accident in Glace Bay. The strangers in the funeral procession were some of his fellow workers from the Glace Bay mine.

The Vanishing Woman by Jimmy Donnison The story I am about to tell you is true. It happened to my great-great-grandfather who told it to my great-grandmother who told it to my grandmother who told it to me. When my great-great-grandfather was a boy, about my age, he lived in England in a large old house in a lonely spot atop the cliffs of Dover. The house was surrounded by a big garden with lots of apple trees. One day, when he was playing in the gar? den, a lady he had never seen before sud? denly appeared beside him. She asked him to save two apples for her when they had ripened on the trees, and she would return for them later.

The apples remained on the shelf in case she returned for them. They did not dry up or rot. They turned to stone!!!

A Bad Christmas by Jamie Dawson It was Christmas Eve and Peggy MacDonald was getting ready to go to Midnight Mass. Then suddenly she heard sleigh bells. She just ignored it but then she heard them again, so she went outside to see. When she got outside she saw nothing, but heard a voice say, "Something bad is going to happen." Twelve o'clock came and she went to church. Mass got out and she went home. She was asleep when she was awakened by sleigh bells. She went downstairs and she heard a voice say, "Something bad is going to happen." This frightened her greatly.
