worth's. Woolworth's used to hire --well, every store hired 40 or 50 girls on Saturday night, because everybody got paid Saturday, and everybody came to town, and the stores were open till 11 or 11:30, till the last train went back out to Mira. So, everybody had lots of work. You worked from 5 till 11 for a dollar. You worked from 1 o'clock till 11 for $1.50. But it went a long way, back then. Anyway, after I graduated, I got work in a meat market--Samuels Meat Market. And that was a really cold job. There was no heat in the R'9ht:So"*h Street_Bridge in the 1920's; it gave building at all, and you had big carcasses on iron rails down the whole length of the building. With no heat. Beef carcasses, pork carcasses, and lamb car? casses. And a great big chopping block. Four kind of sausages for a quarter. Five- pound roast and two pound of butter for a dollar. Or a better roast--two-pound roast and two pound of butter for $1.25- It's just amazing PJHE 'hen I think of r' r'" A 1' r' A IAff "" prices access to the Mira River.
