(That's sort of the way a lot of fellows keep the names of tunes taped to their guitar.) Right. (This is all shorthand.) Just headings, of the story. (So when you hear that you're going to be called for something, you....) I go into that and try to pick out some stuff that I can remember, and remember how I did them. (Did you ever actually go to books, looking for jokes and stories?) Oh, there were times. (People) sent me some stuff. And I would try to work it out to suit my way of doing it, you know. Hughie worked for Swift Canadian, and everybody that came in. After we did the first gig, everywhere you went, somebody told you a story. Some of them, you couldn't use them in a poolroom, but they'd tell you them anyway. And Hughie'd come--I'd pick him up at night. Like I said, there was one week we did 8 shows. I'd go down and pick him up. Because I was Whale Cruisers Ltd. CHETICAMP Contact Capt. Get in the car. "I heard a new one today." "So did I!" We'd hash that all the way.... But, oh my, there's been so many stories and, like I said before, everybody came along and told you a story. You couldn't use them all. But we used a lot of good stories that people stopped and told us about. And my wife always looked at all the magazines and saw a story that she thought could ad? just a little bit and make it a Cape Breton story, and it worked many times. We'd doctor it up to make it Cape Breton. Some of them were probably from Asia or somewhere, but they all work if you tell them the right way.
