just the kind of songs....) Yeah. (It was just how they used it.) Yeah, how they used it. (So you may have a song that you would sing at a party, and a woman may have that same song....) For the baby. Right. (That's very interesting.... And you feel it's the drink that really separated that, and made party singing more a man's thing.) Oh, yes. Yeah, yeah--in those days. Homemade beer. You couldn't afford to go to the liquor store. Maybe the big shot...there would be 3 or 4 down home, they had the store, something like that. But the rest were making homemade beer. Oh, I don't know. See, I had no education. I thought maybe a lum? berjack. I made my living pretty near all lumberjack. When we went to Toronto in 1966, (back home) in 1974--8 years (away). But before that I fished a little bit, but not too much. And besides that it was lumberjack. I cut wood at the Mersey Paper. Till '56. But in the summertime we used to go at Ju? dique, for Dick Cotton, Richard Cotton. That was peel wood. And after the peel wood, after the 15th of August, we used to move to the Mersey Paper. (Peel wood?) You'd cut it 3 1/2 (feet) and then you'd peel it. And then, when the mill got built in Port Hawkesbury in 1961, I worked '61, '62, '63, Take Route 22 Out of Sydney BAR & GRILL LTD.
