noise...." (And so Ms. Devoe decided to report it. Room 9 was found to be locked from the outside, and Rehburg was found in? side lying on the bed which was saturated with blood.) J. J. Roy, M.D.: I was called sometime after 8 a.m. to come over to the Norfolk as quickly as possible; and I did so. I was taken to Room No. 9, and on opening the door found Rehburg on the bed smeared with blood. The bed clothes were covered with blood; pillows stained; and he was in such a mess that I thought the proper thing to do was to take him to the hospital. I had the ambulance called and picked him up in the bed clothes and took him to the hospital. We shaved the hair off and washed him off and sutured him, and transferred him to the ward. His pulse was irregular; breathing irregular He died about 6 o'clock. FROM A NEWSPAPER ACCOUNT: Before leaving the ho? tel, Rehberg regained consciousness for a few moments and is BRAD'S OUTDOOR ADVENTURES 4 WE NOW CARRY...

LABOUR/LE TRAVAIL Journal of Canadian Labour Studies LaboiirLe Travail is the official publication of the Canadian Committee on Labour His? tory. Since it began publishing in 1976, it has carried many important articles in the field of working-class history, industrial sociology, labour economics, and labour relations. Al? though primarily interested in a historical perspective on Canadian workers, the journal is interdisciplinary in scope. In addition to articles, the journal features documents, con? ference reports, an annual bibliography of materials in Canadian labour studies, review essays, and reviews. While the main focus of the journal's articles is Canadian, the review essays and reviews consider international work of interest to Canadian labour studies. Many oi' Labour's articles are illustrated. Revue d'etudes OUVRIERES CANADIENNES Publiee par le Comite canadien sur l'histoire du travail, la revue Labour/Le Travail a fait paraitiie depuis 1976 plusieurs articles marquants dans le domaine de rhistoire de la classe ouvriere, de la sociologie industrielle, de Teconomie du travail et des relations industrielles. Bien qu'elle se propose d'aboid d'etudier les travailleurs et les travail- leuses du Canada dans une perspective historique, la revue est aussi ouverte aux specialistes d'auttes disciplines. En plus des articles, la revue public des documents, des rapports de conferences, une bib? liographic annuelle, des notes critiques et des comptes rendus de volumes. Si la plupart des articles touchent le Canada, les notes critiques et les comptes rendus portent sur des travaux d'envei'ure Internationale pouvant interesser les chercheure canadiens. Des illustrations accom- pagnent plusieurs articles de Labour/Le Travail. As there was no eyewitness to the alleged attack, various theories are advanced here as to what had occurred. The local police department tonight stated that no doubt robbery was the motive as the suspected man had been staying in the hotel for the past 4 weeks and is alleged to have possessed very little money. This theory was advanced by the fact that examination after his death brought forth the police information that Rehberg's clothes contained no money, and generally the deceased carried quite a sum of money on his person. The suspected man (Sloane), it is stated, appeared in the lobby of the hotel 7:45 on Saturday morning and engaged in conversation with several employees on current topics. He did not appear to be excited.... And when Clare, the day clerk, who had just come in for duty, asked him where Rehberg was, he replied that he had sent the deceased out on a message. He disappeared immediately afterwards, and has not been seen since. Police tonight, reconstructing the story of the crime, said that they believe the murderer had stood behind the door of the room and, as Rehberg entered, hit him over the head with some blunt instrument. It was not enough to stun him, and a struggle ensued, in the course of which lighting fixtures were torn from the walls and the room generally torn up. Another odd angle to the case is that the rooms on either side of that in which the fight took place were occupied during the fatal night, but as both occupants left the hotel that morning for the early train, it is unlikely that they would be able to give much information concerning the case. Dr. Roy conducted a post-mortem with Dr. Lynch, and they found death had been caused by many fractures of the skull and hemorrhages.... Sheriff MacKillop continues: in my opinion, Sloane never meant to kill him. He meant to rob him. Because he rushed down to the front office, and here was (another) man behind the desk, so he had to keep going. He didn't try any robbery there. And he walked in a blinding snowstorm.... NEWSPAPER, 1930: Worst storm in decade hits Cape Breton. Rail and tram company workers battled 20-foot drifts to open lines. Cape Breton Island today is digging out of the deepest snow which has covered her for many years. Outside of the city of Sydney and surrounding districts, where conditions were gradually resuming their normal aspect, all traffic on the island has been temporarily abandoned as the inhabitants spent the day with a shovel in an effort to reach coal houses and bams.
