Left: Duncan Campbell's property at Big Intervale. Centre: Murdock MacGregor's place, Big Intervale. Right: unnamed property, thought to be at Big Intervale. Readers' help in correctly naming the photos will be welcomed. I don't know what his negotiations amounted to, but he didn't make any settlements. (Ken Donovan: Did the first fellow make any?) No. Neither one made a settlement. So they must have gone down around 1937 and I think that it would be 1938. I was a Provincial Forester and the thing was dumped in MacQuarrie's lap as Minister of Lands and Forests. I was a young forester and if there was any dirty job to do (it) would come my way. So I was sent down to negotiate. Hot? Cold? Wet?
