amalgamation of different fish plants in Nova Scotia. And our plant in North Sydney obviously had to go with it, because we were a branch of Lunenburg Sea Products. So that's what happened there. And they then (called) the North Sydney plant Leonard Brothers Division of National Sea Products Limited. And eventually it became North Sydney Division, National Sea Products Limited. But one of the interesting things that most people don't know is that in the very early 1950's--my guess would be '53, '54, '55, in that range-- National Sea Products also owned H. B. Nickerson & Sons Limited in town. And they didn't want to make it known because (that) could be considered a problem under the Companies Act. So they kept it quiet. And the two plants competed one against the other. And I never knew--and I don't think my father knew--that it was owned by National Sea Products for quite some time. And there was a lot of money lost, I can assure you--competition. But after awhile. National Sea Products had problems with Nickersons, and they didn't get along--so they sold it back to them. And then we found out! After they had sold it back, that they had owned it! So that's the story of the two big plants on the waterfront in North Sydney at that time. (When you said earlier, "And word came down" that you should move to Lunenburg. The way you said that I thought. Now, that's not his dad saying, "Go to Lunenburg and work on it." That's much more (Bigger than dad or family.) Oh, definitely- -that was a corporate decision out of Halifax. I was up there, and it was a very, very large operation in Lunenburg. I've forgotten--it certainly went over a thousand employees. (You use certain words, too, that we--we just use the words, but it would be great GILLIS ?? BUILDING CENTRE!
