gate, on the road coming home. Oh, Dhia, Dhia, "Look!" I said. We took the dough, rolled it up, and I put it in the cellar, behind the boards. Cleaned the floor up and everything, and I got my clothes dusted off. My mother and father came in, "What are you doing?" "I'm not doing anything," I said, "we're waiting here." I guess the mice got the dough behind the boards, be? cause they never found out. Oh Dhia, the crazy things we were doing. We had a neighbour, Mary MacDonald, and she was always watching the road by her place, through the window. She was always watching the road, and wondering who was on the go. So I decided to play a trick. I was around thirteen or fourteen years old. I got all dressed up. I had on a long full dress, a hat with flowers on it, all around it here (indicating around her head), and a white purse. I took a short? cut past Mary's house, through the woods. •

Then I went walking fast on the road, past her window, with the white purse and I was swinging it. So she looks out the window and sees this wom? an coming, and she didn't know her at all. That puz? zled her. Mary went over to the O'Briens' house, and said, "I saw someone walk? ing over the Glendale Road. She was a tall woman, she had a hat full of flowers, and she had a white purse, do you know who it was?" Mrs. O'Brien could hardly keep from laughing, because she knew about the trick. "I didn't see any? body yet, I was working. Maybe she was a MacLellan. You'll have to go over there to see if they've seen her." Mary Ann's father, Donald Ronald Mac? Lellan.
