Lennox Mauger and the ox And we had everything to eat. We had boiled dinners. We grew all our vegeta? bles. We lived like princes with the food that didn't cost us hardly anything. We grew our food. So, do you know what he used to pay some of those fellows a day? 75 cents. 25 cents for little fellows to come and put the seed. 50 cents a day, for little fellows. And...when he'd go out plowing he probably would get 3 or 4 dol? lars a day for plowing. (He had) a great big oxen. Pearl will show you the picture of the ox. Not long before he died, he took a picture of the ox, and it's hanging up there.... And that was the ox that put in all those hundred barrels of seed, that ox. And he was alone. He didn't want another. When Lennox had hors? es --he'd have to have two horses hitched onto the plow. But when he didn't have the horses, he'd have the ox. Steers, they call it. And this big steer would take that and rush through the--and sometimes he'd say, "Ho!" --what would they say now?--the way you talk to an ox. I forget. Anjrway, they don't talk to them like you do to a horse.... And the ox would stop, right like that, wouldn't move, if he told him. He'd under? stand . And when Lennox would tell the ox to back up, Lennox would pull the plow back, and the ox would back, back, back. "Whoa!" he'd say. And then the ox would stand right still. That ox couldn't talk, and that was all. He just couldn't talk. Beautiful, big.... They had to get rid of him. They put him on pas? ture for a year or two and fat? tened him up, and then--oh, it broke my heart. But, had to get rid of it.... Af? ter all the hours the poor ox had IVs more fun to eat in a pub...
