That was when they made the ghetto.... We went to live with an aunt of ours who gave us just a corner from her bedroom. We just had enough space to put in one bed and a little cot. We didn't have a hiding place, and that was really the most important thing. But people started to prepare and make hiding places knowing that there was going to be a killing. I could see the German soldiers jumping over the fence. And I said, "Oh gosh, they're coming in, there'll be a kill? ing." So we have to go hide, and we had no hiding place. And my - aunt- -they had made in the basement a hiding place, but it was very small. Only enough for them. So they didn't want to let us in. But once we (saw) where they were going.... One of the rooms where my aunt lived-- and she had a son-- they dug out an en? trance to the base? ment. It was like a brick stove where they were cooking, and it was just a small piece on the side where they kept kindling, wood...and you took all this wood out. And I'm telling you that they made a trap door. We were going into that basement. The basement was just ground. Just earth. And the way they fixed it for themselves--they made from the ground something that looked like a bench. You could sit in there. There was a little bit lower dug so you could put your feet down. And there was a small baby there. A newborn baby. It was my cousin's baby.
